DUTCH AGREES.

We spoke.

I enclose a schedule of information regarding Dutch agents who are the financial responsibility of S.O.E.

A solution worth considering might be the paying over of the total accrued credits to our Dutch opposite number, the S.B.O., which would assume responsibility for settlement with the agents' dependants.

lynch-pins of the stealing III penetration sufficiently illustrates the point. It is, in my view, apparent that an F.O.I. officer with the duty of advising on the security of the Latch organisation in the field would have been trying to perform an impossible task, if there was not collected together in one place all that was known regarding ARPILO, when the F.O.I. agent VIC came here in the autumn of 1943 he asserted positively (21.12.43) that there was an elaborate system of cut-outs in Paris which ensured that however much a route to Paris might be penetrated the route thereafter was safe. This had to be taken to be correct. It is a remarkable fact that on the following day (22.12.43) the agent ARPILO was also interrogated in London and said that CHARD and he, after travelling to Paris, were taken over by the VIC organisation and were then contacted together by the VIC agent, JAMES, to Lyons. The inconsistencies between the statements of VIC and ARPILO never seem to have been compared and VIC was never tackled with ARPILO's statement. The extent to which the VIC route had been penetrated ought to have received the most urgent examination and the record, if such had existed, of agents and others who had passed over the VIC route ought to have been perused and attention paid to those individuals. It seems to me that the keeping of complete records properly coded and cross-referred is the first essential of security in the field.

As a footnote to the above I would suggest that CHARD and CHOUT, who would in the circumstances never have been allowed to escape by the Germans, ought to be affirmatively cleared of suspicion. The evidence of KIMBERLIN, I think, makes their position abundantly clear. Indeed they performed a valuable service in escaping and arranging for the facts, or some of them, to be sent to this country from Switzerland in advance of their own arrival here. Although the case is not so strong, everything we have seen in recent months I think confirms the view that KIMBERLIN was an innocent dupe and would never have been sent here as a conscious German agent whose interrogation in this country might have given away the very elaborate game that was being played.

DUTCH CASUALTIES

Reference our telephone conversation of this afternoon, the following slight amendments should be made to the list of agents believed to be in German hands. This list was prepared in your section, shortly after the first interrogation of CHIVE and SPROUT at Baywater. Such amendments as are included below, are those which have arisen in the light of further interrogations of the agents concerned, and as a result of more mature reflection on their part.

You are probably fully aware of the fact, but just in case it may have slipped your memory, I think it is worth drawing attention to the statements made by both CHIVE and SPROUT to the effect that such visual recognition of agents as they may have been able to make, was entirely carried out in a period of only one week in the Spring of 1943. At the end of this week arrangements for exercising prisoners were refused, and it was no longer possible to see people through the windows of the cells.

The excellent list, as prepared by your section, can stand as it is in all columns, with the exception of those which set out the 'photos which the agents recognised. In these columns, the alterations below, should be inserted as the out come of further interrogations.

Operation	Chive	Sprout
1. Broadbean	doubtful	yes
2. Endive	-	yes
3. Kohlrabi	-	yes
4. Seekale	yes	yes
5. Chicory	yes	doubtful
6. Cress	yes	-
22. Parsnip	yes	-
23. Watercress	no	-
26. Turnip	no	-
27. Celery A	no	-
28. Tomato B	no	-

The following additions should also be made:-

31. Catarrh	-	doubtful
32. Pumpkin	doubtful	-
33. Gherkin	-	yes

The matter of Watercress being of some importance, has been carefully gone into, and I think that there is little doubt that CHIVE was mistaken at his first interrogation, and that he has, in fact, never seen this agent.

It is also interesting to note that both agents did not recognise the picture of Hockey, though SPROUT was in an adjacent cell, and was frequently in conversation with him.

Report on the Report from escaped Dutchmen

All the following names (except perhaps one or two) are known in England & will know Lincoln (the first name with the exception of us all unknown to me). Linnaeus with Van Linné's representative were landed in Nov. 21, 1841. Beginning of March Van Linné & a few days later Linnaeus were arrested. Van Linné apparently intended to go to the German & sold himself amongst other things, the name of the so-called "Linnéan Committee". Rouman ~~is shown~~ was the first to be received by the receipt. Com (at the moment most
